

Luxury Management

Certificate of Advanced Studies (CAS)

Including Study Trip to a European Luxury Capital

Building Competence. Crossing Borders.

Program

Luxury. A phenomenon with a thousand facets

This program enables participants to rethink luxury and understand its management specifics.

INTRODUCTION

The global luxury business has seen constant growth over the last few decades. But what is luxury? And what will be considered luxurious in the future? Many key drivers in different macroenvironmental spheres have an impact on what people crave and what their status symbols are in different cultural contexts. Numerous industries have a top segment offering luxury products and experiences. The ever-changing nature of luxury and luxury consumption requires such companies to constantly adapt while at the same time safeguarding the identity and superior value of their brands in the eyes of the customers.

PROGRAM

The program introduces professionals in this field and those with an interest in the inner workings of the luxury business to the fundamentals of luxury management in the 21st century. It strikes a balance between sound academic education and practical work on participants' own projects. While enrolled in the program, participants will work on individual projects and take part in workshops offered by experts from different fields. Once they graduate, they will not only have a diploma and a professional network in the field of luxury, but also a sound understanding of modern luxury management and of the broader macroenvironmental context that will shape the luxury business of the future. In addition, they will have developed a sound business model or concept for an existing or new luxury product or experience, based on the academic and practical content of the program.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Interested persons who are new to the field and/or are already working with luxury/premium goods, considering next career moves, or planning to start an own company in the luxury sector.

PROGRAM BENEFITS

The program focuses on the key change drivers of luxury and is based on theoretical concepts and their practical application in a contemporary business context.

By completing this CAS program, you will ...

- gain a broader perspective on luxury as a social phenomenon and a driver of many different business models.
- learn about the significance of luxury for culture, society, and the economy.
- be challenged to critically rethink the common notion of "luxury" and develop new, future-proof ideas.
- gain an understanding of the buying behavior and expectations of (new) luxury goods customers in different cultural contexts.
- understand the key drivers of "new" luxury and learn how to react in an environment marked by digitalization, globalization, multiculturalism, millennials, and immaterialization.
- expand your network as you interact with other participants, lecturers, and industry representatives.

APPROACH

We employ a wide range of different teaching and learning techniques to suit different learners, including lectures by experienced ZHAW School of Management and Law faculty members and external guest speakers, company visits and presentations, group discussions, individual projects, case studies, individual literature review, and a study trip to a European luxury capital.

The program will take place under the academic lead of Dr. Fabio Duma. He will be joined by a selected group of highly qualified lecturers as well as representatives and experts of various luxury industries.
