Title:

Machine Learning applied to Non-Life Insurance Problems

Abstract:

Statistical problems in insurance become increasingly more complex because of new technology and bigger data warehouses. Machine learning provides very powerful tools that manage to solve involved statistical problems. The aim of this presentation is to bridge the gap between the actuarial community and the machine learning community. We present actuarial problems and discuss machine learning methods.